Student Rights and Responsibilities

Respect, Responsibility, Reflect

- Reflecting the values of Florida State
- Demonstrating respect for ourselves and others
- Taking responsibility for yourself and those around you

FSU is a diverse community with a longstanding tradition of respect for the dignity and worth of each person. We recognize the importance of disagreement and informed debate for a dynamic learning environment, we also expect each member of our community to embrace the values of civility and ethical conduct and share in the responsibility to promote these values.

Philosophy of Discipline

A humanistic approach to discipline is used whenever possible. The University Student Conduct system and appeals processes are designed to provide and help maintain an atmosphere within the university community that is conducive to academic pursuits. Serious disciplinary action against a student, such as separation, is considered and invoked only when other options fail to meet the needs of the university's mission.

Student Conduct Code and Organizational Conduct Code

The Florida State University Student Conduct Code

Outlines our community behavioral standards and educates FSU students on how to responsibly engage with the FSU Community. The document outlines the policies, procedures, offenses and rights that the department of Student Conduct and Community Standards is responsible for upholding. It is the responsibility of all students and student organizations to have read, understood and adhere to the Student Organization Conduct Code.

The Florida State University Student Organization Conduct Code

Outlines our community behavioral standards for student organizations and educates FSU students on how to responsibly engage with student organizations in the FSU Community. The document outlines the policies, procedures, offenses and rights that the department of Student Conduct and Community Standards is responsible for upholding relating to student organizations. It is the responsibility of all students and student organizations to have read, understood and adhere to the Student Organization Conduct Code.

Individual's Rights

As participants in a student conduct process, individuals have the right to:

- Present information on their behalf.
- Choose not to answer any and all questions posed by a hearing body.
- Be accompanied by an advisor.
- Have hearing decisions communicated in writing and be provided with an opportunity to appeal those decisions.
- Request reasonable accommodations from the office adjudicating their student conduct case.

Accommodation requests must be made three (3) business days in advance of the scheduled hearing to the appropriate Student Conduct Authority. For details and information regarding the student code of conduct and its procedures, consult:

sccs.fsu.edu

Academic Appeals

Florida State University offers several pathways for student complaints and appeals in the appropriate areas. Communication and feedback from students are considered key to the improvement of the institution. In addition to the multitude of complaint pathways, students are encouraged to resolve conflicts through less formal pathways such as direct contact with the person(s) involved. Many of the student grievance processes also encourage students to seek resolution at the point closest to the origin of the problem. Students will find this step-by-step guide helpful as they resolve academic problems.

A resource available to all students who wish to learn more about academic and non-academic appeals is the Student Ombuds Office. The Student Ombuds is an impartial and independent professional who assists FSU students with resolving university-related matters through an informal and confidential exploration of options. While the Student Ombuds may offer guidance, they cannot advocate on behalf of students or override the authority of FSU faculty, staff or leadership.

Note: Communication with the Student Ombuds Office does not constitute notice to the university.

Student feedback is vital for the improvement of Florida State University. FSU offers various processes for student complaints and appeals. Students have the option to resolve conflicts informally, such as through direct contact with those involved. However, students also have the right to initiate a formal complaint process, which typically recommends trying to resolve the issue at the source of the conflict first. Ultimately, students have the autonomy to choose whether to attempt to resolve a conflict formally or informally.

Florida State University Statement for Students on the Unlawful Possession, Use, or Distribution of Illicit Drugs and Alcohol

Florida State University Alcohol Policy

FSU affirms the guiding ethical principle of responsible freedom. Students, staff, and faculty are expected to show respect for order, ethical conduct and the rights of others, and to model in daily living a high sense of personal honor and integrity. FSU neither encourages nor condemns the legal consumption of alcoholic beverages. The university recognizes, however, that the majority of undergraduate students are below the legal drinking age and that there are serious health risks and behavior problems associated with the use of alcohol in the collegiate environment. Consequently, alcohol will be permitted at FSU or programs sponsored by FSU or its direct support organizations only in those settings which:

- Comply with federal or state laws, local ordinances, university regulations, foreign country laws (in the case of study abroad programs conducted by Florida State University International Programs, Inc.), Student Conduct Code, Student Organization Conduct Code, and this policy;
- Present minimal health and safety risks; and
- In no way inhibit the full participation of those who choose not to drink alcohol.

Events and activities that encourage excessive drinking and/or lead to the endangerment of individuals will not be permitted. Any person or group in violation of federal or state laws, local ordinances, or of this policy will be reported to the proper federal, state, local or university authorities for appropriate action.

Definition: Large public and formal events where the university acts in symbolic ways to honor, celebrate, and reward achievements central to its mission (e.g., graduation, convocation, dedications, awards, ceremonies). These events convey important values about what is central to the university. Florida State University is concerned with the image conveyed when alcohol service is included as part of these events.

All University Sponsored Events are subject to the guidelines outlined in Section I of the alcohol policy. In addition, the following restrictions apply;

- The university maintains the right to forward possible violations of federal or state laws, local ordinances, and university regulations, to the proper authorities through the Florida State University Police Department.

Health Risks

Alcohol consumption may cause a number of changes in behavior which are related to dose, rate of intake, body size and percentage of body fluid, expectations, social environment, physical conditions (disease or, more commonly, hormonal cycles can be factors), enzyme differences, and concentration of alcohol in a drink. It may increase aggressiveness, lower inhibitions, cloud judgment, reduce resistance, and hamper the ability to make decisions.

Alcohol first affects the area of the brain responsible for higher functions, such as decision-making and social inhibitions, suppressing an individual's self-control. Alcohol in the blood can slow reaction time, reduce muscle coordination and impair eyesight contributing to deficits in performance, judgment, memory, and motor skills. Even low doses can significantly impair the judgment and coordination required to drive a car safely. Florida State University reiterates that no one should ever drink alcohol and drive. The designated driver should never drink alcohol.

Moderate to high doses of alcohol may cause marked impairments in higher mental functions, altering a person's ability to learn and remember information. Very high doses cause respiratory depression and death. If combined with other depressants of the central nervous system, much lower doses of alcohol may produce the effects just described above.

Florida State University Health Risks of Illicit Drugs

Illicit drugs all have some health-threatening qualities—some more than others. Examples include increased heart rate and lung damage from marijuana; central nervous system disorders from cocaine, heroin and hallucinogens; and liver, lung and kidney damage from inhalants. HIV infection also is spread widely among intravenous drug users. Even infrequent use of illicit drugs can result in physical afflictions, such as hangovers, cardiovascular damage, digestive problems, tremors, impaired sexual response and injuries due to lost coordination. Other possible effects include reduced alertness and impaired performance at school or work, interpersonal conflicts and financial difficulties. Dependence and addiction are constant threats to users of illicit substances. Regular abuse of these substances generally exposes users to criminal elements, which may lead to involvement in further criminal activities.

Illicit Drug Penalties

The penalty for possession (second-degree misdemeanor) is sixty days jail and $500 fine. Penalties for trafficking (first-degree felony) range up to thirty years imprisonment and fines of $500,000.

For informational purposes only. State sanctions are subject to change by the Florida Legislature.

State of Florida statutes declare that it is unlawful for any person under 21 years of age to consume or possess alcoholic beverages. Consequently, no one under the legal drinking age may consume, distribute or possess alcohol on university properties or as part of any university activity.

It is unlawful to sell, give, serve or permit to be served alcoholic beverages to a person under 21 years of age. Furthermore, servers can be held civilly liable for damage caused by underage drinkers to whom they provided alcoholic beverages.

Florida State University HIV/AIDS Policy

Students, employees and applicants for admission or employment at Florida State University who have or who may become infected with HIV will not be excluded from enrollment or employment or restricted in their normal responsibilities and access to university services or facilities due to their HIV/AIDS status, unless individual medically based judgments establish that exclusion or restriction is necessary for the welfare of the individual or of other members of the university community. That is, the university will not discriminate against otherwise qualified HIV-infected applicants, students or employees.

University Health Services is responsible for monitoring developments with regard to HIV/AIDS, acting upon and administering the policies of the Florida Department of Education Division of Colleges and Universities and the university concerning HIV/AIDS and coordinating the university's efforts in educating the university community on the nature and prevention of the disease.

The university will be guided in its implementation of this policy by current authoritative medical information, applicable federal and state law, Florida Department of Education Division of Colleges and Universities' HIV/AIDS Policy, and the guidelines suggested by the Centers for Disease Control, the Public Health Service, the American College Health Association, and the Florida Department of Health.

Florida State University has designated HIV counselors through University Health Services who are available to provide confidential HIV testing for FSU students.
